What is Community Long-Term Recovery?

It is a unique program offered by FEMA to only the mostly severely impacted communities. A team of recovery specialists with skills in engineering, architecture, planning, housing and economic development assist a community to develop a Long-Term Recovery Plan.

A recovery plan is a roadmap that identifies the best way to allocate limited resources to the projects and programs that will create the greatest bang-for-the-buck.

Recovery Grant

Caruthersville and Pemiscot County have been awarded a $52,000 grant to hire a recovery coordinator to help implement the Community Long-Term Recovery Plan. Sallie Hemenway, Director of Operations with the MO Department of Economic development says, “the funding offered by the Department of Economic Development is just a first step in the recovery efforts of Caruthersville and will help the city with organization in their efforts of helping local families and businesses. We look forward to working with Caruthersville on their efforts and long-term recovery goals.”
